Product guide, valid as of 1 January 2021

Insurance for business interruption due to disability is issued by Pohjola Insurance Ltd. The content of the insurance is explained in detail in the insurance terms and conditions. Claims are paid in accordance with the terms and conditions.

Insurance for business interruption due to disability is a part of risk management

Insurance for business interruption due to disability covers financial losses incurred by the business due to disability or death of the insured person as the result of an illness or accident. Such an incident may interrupt or disrupt business operations.

What does insurance for business interruption due to disability cover?

Insurance for business interruption due to disability covers financial losses that are incurred if the insured person falls ill, is injured or dies as the result of an incident described above. Such an incident may interrupt or disrupt business operations.

Insurance for business interruption due to disability can be used to insure persons aged between 18 to 65 who are permanent employees of the company.

With respect to accidents, the insurance is valid for as long as the person remains in the working life.

The insurance covers the company's lost business earnings. The company's earnings are determined and calculated separately when taking out the insurance. The insurance also includes a maximum compensation (10,000 to 100,000 euros), which is the maximum sum paid to the business or private trader if the insured person falls ill or is injured in an accident. The compensation is always individual to each accident or illness. When paying out compensation, we deduct any allowances payable to the insured from statutory compensation schemes. In other respects, the insurance terms and conditions of Business Interruption Insurance KE03 apply.

The insurance also covers expenses incurred from measures taken to reduce the loss of earnings, such as expenses for a temporary employee, overtime hours, purchased services and other expenses from temporary business arrangements.

The insurance does not cover losses whose cause precedes the commencement of the policy. Neither does the insurance cover losses caused by pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage.

Example 1

A plater-welder at a dry dock company broke his ankle in a commuting accident and was given sick leave. The company hired a substitute for the welder for the period of disability and managed to avoid the financial loss. Pohjola's insurance for business interruption due to disability compensated the company for the substitute employee's payroll costs according to the sum insured agreed in the insurance policy.

Example 2

The company's employee is suffering from joint pain. A doctor diagnoses the employee with advanced rheumatoid arthritis. The doctor finds that the illness is advanced to such a degree that the employee must have had it before the commencement of the insurance policy. Insurance for business interruption due to disability does not cover the damages caused by disability, even as the employee has not previously experienced any symptoms that would suggest the illness.

Pohjola's Insurance for business interruption due to disability does not cover damages if the accident occurred or the illness began prior to the insurance's commencement based on medical evidence.

For how long is compensation paid?

If the insured person is injured in an accident, compensation is paid after three days from the accident. If the insured person falls ill, compensation is paid after 14 days of the start of the illness. These periods are known as qualifying periods. We pay compensation for an uninterrupted period of up to 12 months for an individual accident or illness.

What information do we need for the insurance?

We need the following information to grant the insurance and determine the price. The list is not exhaustive:

- full personal ID code of the insured person
- maximum compensation
- scope of coverage: a) illness and accident or b) accident only

What to do in the event of an accident

Report to us the illness or injury of the insured person as soon as possible. You can submit the loss report on the Pohjola Insurance website at pohjola.fi/verkkopalvelut. You should submit the claim as soon as possible and no later than 12 months from the date when you learned of the illness or accident and its consequences.

When calculating the amount of compensation, we deduct any amounts paid to the insured from statutory schemes. Note that statutory schemes have separate claim application procedures that must be followed.
